Report of Public Library.

At the annual town meeting, held in March, 1893, the voters of Kensington accepted the conditions of the "State Library Bill," and voted $25.00 for the establishment of a Free Public Library for the town, and appointed the following named persons for Trustees of the same: John A. Blake, Josiah D. Prescott and Sarah A. Green, who held their first meeting April 4, 1893, organizing with J. A. Blake, Chairman, J. D. Prescott, Treasurer, and S. A. Green, Secretary.

The books were received in July, and in September the library was open to the public. Mrs. A. Maria Hilliard was appointed Librarian, and the Library, located at her house, is open to the public every Saturday from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 9 P. M.

It was suggested by Mr. Whittier, of the State Board of Library Commissioners, that the entire sum of $25.00 be expended for the purchase of books, and the expense of establishing the Library be paid by the Selectmen from the contingency fund. As the Ladies' Library contains a large number of interesting and instructive books, to which many families have access, it was decided that the expenses should be paid from the small amount appropriated for library purposes, and no books should be purchased. It is hoped that the town will appropriate the coming year a sufficient sum to enable the Trustees to fairly compensate the Librarian for her services and also to make the desired addition of books to the Library.

Respectfully submitted,

SARAH A. GREEN,

For the Board of Trustees.

Annual Report of the School Board.

It cannot be truthfully said that the citizens of the town are indifferent to the condition and prosperity of their schools, or neglectful of their duties in respect to them. On the contrary, the interest shown in the schools in the last few years has been in a high degree praiseworthy. It may yet be desirable that this interest should be manifested in some more practical and effective ways. While it is true that the law commits the care and supervision of the schools to the Board of Education, the school officials are oftentimes dependent upon others for their knowledge of the condition of the schools and of the time and manner in which special action may be demanded. The hackneyed saying, "no tales out of school," so far as it may have been designed and may serve to repress unreasonable complaints and faultfindings of children, may have a show of wisdom; but when the effect of it is to prevent the disclosure of mischief and immorality, or of injury to persons or property, it must be regarded as practically pernicious. If reports of children should be taken with some grains of allowance, they may yet furnish a reasonable basis for inquiry and investigation by the parents, that there may be a corrective expression of public sentiment, and if need be, of official action.

It is humiliating to report that, owing to lack of information on the part of the School Board, any child of the age at which the law makes school attendance compulsory, should be deprived of school privileges without proper instruction at home. The occurrence of such an offence would seem scarcely credible in a community which had been brought into sympathy with the educational and benevolent activities of the day. Blighting the life of a child from criminal neglect, or motives of selfish greed, is not a wrong to be regarded as trivial, or to be readily pardoned.

It must be understood that teachers are not allowed to introduce new books into the schools or to permit their introduction without the action of the school board. The statute forbids a change of text books oftener than once in five years. The judgment of the members of the board may be at fault in their selection, but their decision cannot be reversed by the teacher. A prudent teacher will supplement the text books in use by her knowledge of the superior excellencies of her favorite authors rather than by disparaging and contemptuous objections to books in use, excite the prejudice and dislike of the scholars to their daily studies. There is no doubt a difference in the merits of school books, but the competition between publishers and dealers is now so great that few if any worthless books are forced upon the public. No publisher will venture to issue any school books not prepared and approved by experienced educators.

It was found that the sum voted by the town district for furnishing a book case for each of the schools was not sufficient for the purpose. The books are not yet properly cared for.

The East school has been taught through the year by Miss Mary A. Tilton of this town whose success in the West school for several terms became a pledge of continuous, faithful and efficient service.

Miss Maud L. Jewell resigned her position as teacher of the West school at the close of the first term to take charge of a school of a higher grade in Exeter. She well merits the promotion she has received. It was, however, a great misfortune to lose her services. She had a very strong hold on the affections of her pupils. Many tears were shed when it was learned that their beloved teacher would not come back to them.

Miss Grace G. York, of this town, a graduate of Robinson Seminary and of the Normal department, succeeded Miss Jewell. Miss York, by her affectionate disposition, winning and ladylike manners, brought daily sunshine into the school room. She was untiring in her efforts to interest and instruct her pupils and was deserving of the entire approval of the parents, and the cordial commendation of the School Board.

Miss Emma Webster, of East Kingston, sustained her well-earned reputation the first term of the year in charge of the North School. She then resigned on account of illness in her family, and was succeeded by Miss Grace Sanborn, of Kingston. Miss Sanborn is also a graduate of Robinson and of the normal annex. The advantages of the culture and training thus received were apparent at the outset in the confidence and tact with which she entered upon her work and in her exceptionally gratifying success.

These young ladies who come to us from Robinson do honor to the institution from which they have graduated, and attest the executive wisdom in adding normal instruction to the usual curriculum of studies. It may reasonably be expected that this arrangement will do much to uplift and improve the character of the public schools in the surrounding country.

PERFECT ATTENDANCE.

Arthur Wadleigh, Emma Austin.

The teachers must explain the discrepancy between this statement and the statistical report. I copy from their records. Several pupils have not been absent one and two terms. A noteworthy record is that of twenty-eight scholars registered the second term in the North school, twenty were not absent or tardy.

During the first term, under the direction of Miss Webster, the scholars of the North school solicited and contributed a sum sufficient to purchase a very nice clock, of which they justly feel proud as an article ornamental and of great convenience in their school room.

The number of children between five and fifteen years of age as reported by the selectmen in their enumeration in April: Boys 36; Girls 30; total 66.

J. E. BROWN, for School Board.
